Witness my hand, at Dodge City, Kansas, the 10th day of July 1882.
F. C. ZIMMERMANN,
County Treasurer.

The Santa Fe road announces a five cent reduction on freights to El Paso and Southern Pacific points between Yuma and Deming.

In Floyd County, Tenn., last week, four brothers named Burnett, married four sisters named Berry.

The leading physicians at Brownsville declare the scourge now raging is not yellow fever but a malignant type of malarial fever.

Congress has disposed of all the appropriation bills and all important legislation under consideration, except the tax reduction bill.

A Cairo clergyman, who told his congregation from the pulpit a week ago that only tipplers and drunkards were sunstruck, was prostrated on the street the very next day, and now he hardly knows how to get out of his fix.

A Colorado City (Tex) gentleman engages the feasibility of utilizing the skin of the prairie dog for making glove leather. We have never seen a tanned prairie dog skin, but think it would make as fine and soft a glove as the so-called first class kid.

Of the forty-six thousand two hundred and ninety-two tons of wild hay cut in Sedgewick county last year a large portion was baled and sent to Colorado, Mexico and Arizona. It costs nothing but the cutting and stacking but before spring brought $8 per ton in the bale.

A Ford county farmer started in the livery-stable business last week, and the first thing he did was to have a big sign painted, representing himself holding a mule by the bridle. "Is that a good likeness of me?" he asked of an admiring friend. "Yes, it is a perfect picture of you, but who is the fellow holding you by the bridle?"

Southeast Missouri is pretty thickly covered with melon patches—some of them being as large as thirty acres, and producing not less than a million melons. The shipments are about twenty-five car loads per day, and the season has but just opened. That section of Missouri is becoming as famous as New Jersey for melons, or as Delaware for peaches.

Some observing genius has suggested that loneliness of home life on the Kansas prairies, where farm houses are often miles apart, may be alleviated by a general utilizing of fence wires for telephonic communication. As in some sections of the country all the fences are of wire most of the "plant" for several private telephones is already in possession of every farmer, so only terminal fixtures are necessary to a free interchange of gossip between families that are too far apart for neighborly calls in bad weather.

A man was bitten by a mad dog at Fort Scott a few days ago and went to Iowa in search of a mad-stone and died of hydrophobia. Several cattle in that section have also been bitten and had to be killed. In many other parts of the state mad dogs have been seen running at large and we are looking for reports of many cases through the hot months. It is well enough to shoot any dog that acts strange or any dog seen at large without an owner.

The secretary of the state board of agriculture reports for the past week the condition of the corn crop continues encouraging. No section of the state is suffering for rain. Correspondents are still correcting the wheat estimates as threshing progresses. The counties that reported eighteen to twenty bushels to the acre two weeks ago are now insisting on twenty-five and thirty. The estimate that the crop will come up to thirty-five million bushels is probably near the actual figures. All kinds of farm raising continue in good condition, and fruit and peaches are the best in our history.

SEATING THEM TOGETHER.

A Topeka correspondent of the Kansas City Journal furnished that paper with the doings at the State Capital. We make an extract from Tuesday's correspondence:

Arrangements have been made to seat the Shawnee, Wyandott, Leavenworth and Ford delegations together in the convention. These counties all send delegates instructed for St. John. If you will refer back several months you will remember these four counties St. John compared with Sedgewick and Gove, and denounced in the most unmeasured terms as whisky holes, and threatened vengeance against them. They have quietly laughed at his threats, and to show their extreme disgust of the man and his power to stop liquor selling, have sent delegations for him. Ford has sent up a rascally man and the Leavenworth delegation is headed by the man who has always defended the saloon men in Leavenworth, and is their regularly employed attorney, and includes George Eddy, the president of the State corrupt association, and who denounced Mr. St. John in the most unmeasured terms only a few months ago, when the delegates were assembled in convention. If the prohibition men of this state only knew for a moment how they were playing into the hands of the politicians who are opposed to the prohibition amendment, they would crawl into holes and die.

The correspondent is mis taken in reference to the delegates from Ford county. Mr. Whitaker is a christian gentleman and prohibitionist, and resides in the east end of the county. He is county superintendent of schools. The anti-prohibitionists in Ford county make little distinction on the candidates.

A Grasshopper Cloud Burst.

A gentleman just returned from a hunting and prospecting trip down Kansas river valley, relates the following phenomenon, which came very disagreeably under his personal observation. He was down below the canyon, some forty miles from here, riding quietly along, when an immense cloud of grasshoppers descended the air. Directly he saw a similar cloud in the shape of a whirlwind coming up from the opposite direction, and the two bodies came into collision of a peculiar violence, and with a roaring sound resembling that of a hail and thunder storm mixed. The dead hoppers poured down like the furious drops and streams of a genuine cloud-burst, filling the atmosphere almost to suffocation. In less than fifteen minutes they covered the ground for over 100 acres to the depth of from six inches to three feet. His horse fell twice before he got beyond the confines of the storm. Passengers on the narrow-gauge railway describe that thousands of crows and buzzards are gathered at the locality described, and the scent of putrefying hoppers is terrific.—Austin Reville.

How THE ALLIGATOR FEELS.—An alligator's throat is an animal's over. Everything that lodges in his mouth goes down. He is a lazy dog, and instead of hunting for something to eat, he lets his victims hunt for him; that is, he lies with his great mouth open, apparently dead, like the 'pompus. Soon a log crawls into it, then a 'fir, then several goats, and a colony of mosquitoes. The alligator don't close his jaw yet. He is waiting for a whole drove of things. He does his eating by the wholesale. A little later a lizard will cool himself under the shade of the upper jaw. Then a few frogs will hop up to catch the mosquitoes, and goats light on the frogs. Finally, a whole village of insects and reptiles settle down for an afternoon picnic. Then all at once there is an earthquake. The big jaw falls, the alligator slyly blinks one eye, gulps down the entire menagerie, and opens his great front door again for more victims.—Florida Letter.

Captain Arrington, of the rangers, is here with a few of his command, and will perhaps remain until he quits the service in September. There ought to be some way to hold the captain to the work he has done so well, and for which he is so enthusiastically loved in every respect. The section of the wild and reckless border over which the vigilant and intrepid Arrington stands guard with his company is one of the most peaceable in the whole state, killers and thieves preferring to give it a wide berth. The captain is the most quiet, gentlemanly and humane body terror it has ever been our pleasure to meet.—Robertie Panhandle.
